A grateful retiree says “Thanks”

Scout Reports

Losing a wallet can be a disconcerting experience.

Losing a wallet and having someone call and say they’d found it before a person was even aware they’d lost it is a rarity.

That’s what happened to Robert Crooks, military and civilian retiree last Thursday. He and his wife returned from the commissary and got a phone call from a commissary representative telling Crooks that his wallet had been found. He went back and retrieved his wallet. Everything was still in it.

Crooks thanks everyone who had a role in getting the wallet back into his pocket. He especially wants to thank Fred Collier, cashier, who gave the wallet back.

“I really appreciate living in a community where such things happen,” Collier said. “I could have gotten back an empty wallet – or nothing.”

This isn’t the first pleasant encounter

Crooks had with Collier. Crooks described two other experiences where he’d gone to the commissary without his wife and came up a few dollars short at the cash register. Crooks said Collier dug into his own pocket to make up the difference.

“I always wait for Fred when I go to the commissary,” Crooks said. “He’s a wonderful person.”

People like Collier are what make the Fort Huachuca community a special place to live and work. Thanks, Fred, and thanks to everyone who, in some manner, goes out of their way to help others here.

New editor at Helm of “Scout”

Joan Vasey, Fort Huachuca Public Affairs Office, is the new editor of the Fort Huachuca “Scout.”

“I’m excited about my new role in Public Affairs,” Vasey said. “I look forward to helping continue to shape the “Scout” to meet the ever-changing needs of the Fort Huachuca community, to keep it a useful and sought-after product that people look forward to reading each week.”

Vasey encourages people to call her or to visit the Public Affairs Office with ideas for articles, or with news of their upcoming events. She encourages those who’d like to try their hand at writing articles or taking photos for consideration to come forward.

“Different writers bring new perspective and fresh style to a publication,” Vasey said. “We’ll be glad to work with writers of all experience levels.”

Those who know anyone who has unusual hobbies or achieved significant accomplishments in some area of their life are also encouraged to call the “Scout” along with those who have interesting or unusual jobs, or something special happening in their unit or workplace.

“If you think it’s newsworthy, it probably is,” Vasey said. “We encourage you to call us. We want input from those who read our paper.”

To contact the “Scout,” call 533-1987. Or, send e-mail to the “Scout” at thescout@hua.army.mil.

The Public Affairs Office is located off Adair, and across the street from the gazebo on historic Brown Parade Field. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Family's household goods damaged in fire

Fort Huachuca responds with post-wide effort to help

By Rob Martinez

Scout Staff

Embarking on a permanent change of station is quite taxing; there's a load of paper work, packing, organizing for the move, farewells to friends and the excitement and stress that comes with the anticipation of creating a new home and starting a new job. Add to this the loss of one's belongings, and it's a recipe for stress and heartache.

Staff Sgt. Mathew Henderson and his family had such a tragedy. But what started out as a tragic event turned into an opportunity to reveal the caring and generosity of Fort Huachuca and the surrounding communities.

The Henderson family arrived Jan. 11 and had only been here for four days awaiting the arrival of their household goods, when they received word that the truck holding their property caught on fire. A significant portion of their belongings were destroyed or rendered unusable, mostly furniture, momentos and the children's Christmas gifts that Henderson had made for them himself.

What little that could be recovered, the moving company brought to their home in Sierra Vista.

"It was already bad enough trying to get a house," Henderson said. "Once we heard about our goods getting torched, my wife was pretty upset. I was a little upset but I wasn't really thrown, mostly because I have a tendency to minimize things that disturb me."

The Hendersons were hoping there wouldn't be too much damage, because they were informed that only certain boxes were burned, but not to what extent. "Once we found out it was all of our stuff, we were pretty bummed," he said.

They salvaged as much as they could. Much of their furniture was hand made.

"We got lucky. Our furniture was gotten from really good people in the past. A lot of the stuff I made myself, and all the children's Christmas presents that were destroyed."

Logan, who is 10, was only mildly upset, Henderson said. For Christmas, Henderson had made a teepee for four-year-old Ethan, and a gun rack for 'light sabers' for two-year-old Dylan. They were a 'little bit bummed,' Henderson said, when they found out about the damage.

After Henderson informed his unit, Lt. Col Thomas Miller, commander of the 309th Military Intelligence Battalion, told him that he had sent out an e-mail to the entire installation asking for help. Two days later, someone bought a living room set, and bedroom sets for all their children.

"The first day, the amount of donations staggered me!" Miller said. "All major elements on post helped. It was awe inspiring. It happened in four days."

Miller said that he was amazed and proud of the "true heroes" all around the community. He said he could not even know about all those who helped, because there were so many. He thanked everyone. He said Pam Allen from Army Community Services brought items from the lending locker. He mentioned that Col. Doug Kinder, post chaplain, and Jim Chambers, deputy garrison commander, were instrumental in getting the message across post. He gave The Fort Huachuca Community

Spouses Club his praise as well. Target and Wal-Mart, as well as individual donors, gave the family gift cards, he said.

Heather, Henderson's wife, said that help came in non-stop. "We have stuff that's twice as good as we had before,"

AAFES Hazardous recall notice

Scout reports

AAFES recently announced the worldwide recall of the Omron 3 Way Instant Thermometer, Models MC-600 and MC-600CAN.

In cooperation with the Food & Drug Administration, Omron Healthcare Inc, of Bannockburn, IL is voluntarily ly recalling certain lot codes of thermometers.

Certain thermometers may develop tip overheating during use. The thermometer has a tip that preheats when the user gets ready to take a temperature. This allows the thermometer to warm close to body temperature enabling the thermometer to take a temperature reading quickly. The supplier found that this heating function could malfunction and heat the tip to a temperature higher than expected. If this happens and the thermometer remains in contact with the skin, it could result in discomfort and, potentially, a minor burn on the user.

The recall involves Omron® 3-Way Instant Thermometers with lot numbers beginning with the following numbers: 01-32, 01-36, 01-37, and 01-38. The lot numbers can be located on the back wall of the battery compartment.

AAFES sold these thermometers between September 19, 2001 and October 21, 2005

Customers should call Omron Customer Service at 800-634-4350 from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm central time, Monday-Friday. Customers may also visit Omron's Web site at www.omronhealthcare.com to access a Customer Service Feedback form for returning the unit for a refund.

Child Passenger Safety Week promotes use of car seats

Army News Service and Scout Reports

The Army is joining with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration this year to promote Child Passenger Safety Week, Feb. 12-18.

The primary goal is to remind all parents and other adults responsible for children traveling in motor vehicles to follow the NHTSA recommendation that children from about 4 to 8 years old and weighing 40 pounds or less need booster seats, unless they are at least four feet, nine inches tall.

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for ages 3 through 33, with only an estimated 10 to 20 percent of children to 8 using booster seats, according to NHTSA. Children ages 4 to 8 who use booster seats are 59 percent less likely to be injured in a car crash than children who are restrained only by a safety belt.

Studies demonstrate a strong correlation between drivers using safety belts and children being properly restrained. Ninety-two percent of children who were transported by belted drivers were restrained compared to only 62 percent of the children transported by unbelted drivers.

Use of child safety seats is required on DoD installations, and more and more states are passing laws requiring child restraints.

Fort Huachuca hosts National Prayer Breakfast

Story and Photos by Esau Lolis

Scout Staff

"Adultery, fornication, wrath, envy, strife, murder and drunks -- pretty much sounds like the place where I used to work," a former Ohio representative said to nearly 375 people Feb. 8 at the Thunder Mountain Activity Centre.

Bob McEwen's punch line got the desired laugh from the audience during the National Prayer Breakfast. Although the presentation was humorous, McEwen delivered a serious message about the importance of seeking guidance from God.

After an introduction by Maj. Gen. Barbara G. Fast, the guest speaker promised to be brief in his speech saying, "As Henry VIII said to his fifth wife, 'I will not keep you long.'"

McEwen explained how American leaders have always looked to God for guidance. "Reflecting on God has always been a trait of those in leadership roles in the United States," he said.

McEwen pointed out that in our nation's earlier years, politicians prayed before making important decisions about national affairs. He explained how Benjamin Franklin called for a recess at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia so delegates could fast and pray for three days while seeking guidance from God. According to McEwen, since then, congressmen have been holding prayer ses-ses before making important decisions. He said this is important because, "There can be no success without God."

"You can't teach anyone who is full of themselves or think they know everything," he said. "We cannot learn until we have recognized a need for growth. There comes a time when we don't have an answer," McEwen said. "It is at that time we need to seek guidance from God."

In closing, McEwen said, "God knows you. He loves you. He has a plan for your life." Fast presented McEwen with a statue of a charging cavalryman. He graciously accepted the token of appreciation saying he was honored to be in a great place and Fort Huachuca was a true force multiplier.

Fast said it was a blessing to have McEwen as guest speaker. "He has spent a lot of time doing what I would call 'building bridges'; building bridges for us as Americans, building bridges for people of various parts of the world to be able to come together and to be able to really have a freedom of choice."

McEwen served in the U. S. Congress on the Select Committee on Intelligence which oversees national security and the House Committee on Rules which has jurisdiction over legislation in Congress.

Post Chaplain (Col.) Kinder, who selected McEwen as guest speaker, said he chose McEwen to speak because, "He's the best." He said he heard McEwen speak at another event and it was imperative that he invite him to speak at Fort Huachuca.

The National Prayer Breakfast also featured a Prisoners of War and Missing In Action remembrance, music by the 36th Army Band Quintet and musical selections by the Fort Huachuca Contemporary Praise and Worship Team.

Kinder commented about religious diversity during the breakfast. "This is an all inclusive event," he said. "We have included all major faith groups." Kinder pointed out that all prayers of different faiths were printed in the programs.

After a scripture reading by Reverend Tommy Simpson, Pastor of Kino Gospel Services,

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Mark Zerger, 11th Signal Brigade, led everyone in a prayer for the nation.

The focus of the prayers was thanksgiving.

The 36th Army Band Brass Quintet played the National Anthem and was followed by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Harry Rauch who presided over the remembrance of POWs and MIAs.

At a reserved table set for four on the stage, were four empty chairs. This place of honor was set for the four branches of the Armed Forces; The Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force.

The honor guard slowly and solemnly marched into the room carrying four service caps. Glasses on the table were raised in an expression of honor and inverted recognizing the POWs and MIAs who were unable to drink. The empty chairs that circled the table were placed in a leaning position symbolizing the hopes that the missing men would return.

"Remember you who are new to our nation's armed forces that you are an important part of the team, and that team will never leave you behind," Rauch said during the ceremony. "May its light represent their presence in our midst and may its flames kindle our resolve to never forget," Rauch said as the honor guard lit a candle in the center of the table.

A 36th Army Band trumpeter played "Taps" as everyone stood until the honor guard marched from the stage.

When all were seated, the Fort Huachuca Contemporary Praise Team performed three musical selections. Tapping his foot on the up and down while playing the harmonica was Family Life Chaplain (Maj.) Thomas McFarland playing along with the Fort Huachuca Contemporary Praise Team. Youth Chaplain David Robson played the guitar and sang while being accompanied by a bass, drum and violin player.

The National Prayer Breakfast ended with a prayer by Chaplain (Maj.) O'Grady.

Fort Huachuca has celebrated National Prayer Breakfast since the 1970s. The first day of prayer was declared by the Continental Congress in 1775. The National Prayer Breakfast movement began in the U.S. during World War II, when small groups met for prayer and bible study in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

RWBAHC celebrates Army Nurse Corps' 105th Army birthday

Scout staff

Fort Huachuca nurses gathered at Raymond W. Bliss Army Health Center Feb. 2 in celebration of the 105th Army Nurse Corps birthday.

Deputy Commander for Health Services, Col. Teresa Parsons, spoke to fellow Army nurses and others in attendance.

As guest speaker, she outlined the Army Nurse Corps history while highlighting specific events throughout the timeline.

Chief of the Army Nurse Corps, Maj. Gen. Gale S. Pollack, made an appearance via television to celebrate and commend nurses on a job well done.

The conference room was decorated with early Nurse Corps uniforms from white pointed-collar dresses circa the 1920s to the olive drab greens from the early 60s. Each Army nurse in attendance received a decorated plaque marking the Corps' birthday.

Parsons said she has seen changes in the Corps along with uniforms and standards, over the past 25 years.

"I have seen changes in opportunities," Parsons said in an enthusiastic tone. "Nurse Corps officers can now be commanders. They can be hospital commanders. They can be Assistant Surgeon Generals," she added.

Parsons drew a parallel between advancement in technology and the Nurse Corps saying "It's like trying to equate the transition people had in the 1920s when they went from car - to train - to plane - to flying on a spaceship," she said. "In 25 years, we made that type of technology leap. With nursing, it's not that different," she added.

At the close of the ceremony, Parsons and newcomer Capt. Catherine To used a sword to cut the Army Nurse Corps birthday cake symbolizing the future, the present and the past.

Army Nurse Corps tradition calls for the unit's most senior and junior nurse officers to cut the cake together. Parsons filled the honor for RWBAHC Commander, Col. Susan Annicelli, who was away on temporary duty.

Parsons said she sees a bright future for the Army Nurse Corps and it will continue to be successful.

Preschool screening

The Fort Huachuca Accommodation School District will conduct a preschool screening on March 23 at 8 a.m. for 3-, 4-, and non-kindergarten 5-year-olds residing on Fort Huachuca.

The screening instruments the schools will use are designed to survey gross-and-fine-motor skills, communication skills, cognitive development and socio-emotional development. Screeners will also test hearing and vision.

Through the screening process, the schools hope to identify children in need of any type of early childhood special education services. Those who suspect a disability in their preschool age child should call the FHAS Preschool at 459-2014.

Tax Quotes of the ages

Scout Reports

Taxes have been one of the most discussed topics through the ages. Just look in the ancient texts and you will find things have changed little since mankind formed the first governments. Here are some of the more interesting quotes passed down and collected by the IRS.

“Taxes are what we pay for civilized society.” — Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., U.S. Supreme Court Justice

“The power of taxing people and their property is essential to the very existence of government.” — James Madison, U.S. president

“To tax and to please, no more than to love and to be wise, is not given to men.” — Edmund Burke, 18th Century Irish political philosopher and British statesman

“I am proud to be paying taxes in the United States. The only thing is – I could be just as proud for half the money.” — Arthur Godfrey, entertainer

“People who complain about taxes can be divided into two classes: men and women.” — Unknown

“No government can exist without taxation.

Former POW waits 61 years to receive medals

Story and photos

Ben Williams has waited a long time to receive his awards from serving in World War II. His dream finally came true Feb. 8.

The former New Mexico National Guardsman was presented with all his medals at a ceremony held especially for him at Landmark Café, a downtown restaurant. The Fort Huachuca commanding general, Maj. Gen. Barbara Fast, presented him with his awards.

"We are so honored to be able to be here tonight for this occasion," said Fast.

Williams served his time in the Philippines. He was captured by the Japanese and was a survivor of the original Bataan Death March.

"The mental perseverance and tenacity Mr. Williams endured is remarkable," Fast said.

Because of a 1974 fire in St. Louis, Miss. that destroyed his records, Williams never received any of the campaign ribbons or awards owed him. Now, 61 years later, Williams can proudly wear his awards.

The mental perseverance and tenacity Mr. Williams endured is remarkable

Maj. Gen. Barbara Fast, commander, USAIC & Fort Huachuca

For his time and service, Williams received the Bronze Star, the WWII Victory medal, the Prisoner of War medal, the Philippine Defense medal, the Philippine Liberation medal and a Presidential Unit Citation medal.

"We are also working on getting him his Purple Heart," explained George Timmons, the Americanism Officer for the Arizona Military Order of the Purple Heart. The injuries he sustained from treatment by the guards qualify him for at least one Purple Heart.

Not only was Williams a brave soldier, but he also lived the values he learned. "We were taught on a daily basis about patriotism and sacrifice," explained Jerry Williams, Williams' son, during a heartfelt tribute to his father.

Williams has touched the lives of many, from his children to Timmons, from Fast to those in attendance at the presentation ceremony. All involved agree it was about time Williams received the awards owed him.

"It's a justice we owed him," said Timmons. "I would've gone to hell, if necessary, to get justice for Ben."

stand the source. Henderson said, "I consider myself a very strong religious, believing person.

"I believe that when you give, you receive more than you can handle. This is definitely a vouch for it, because we've got so much stuff we don't know what to do with it. He went on to say that his 1st Sgt. told him that, "Whenever someone else needs help, don't forget what happened to you."

It's not likely that the Henderson family will forget. At first, Henderson wasn't too thrilled about being stationed at Fort Huachuca.

"Now they've got me working in the company. It's really fun. It's really a neat place. My first impression was definitely, definitely, inaccurate about Fort Huachuca."

Considering what Henderson and his family had experienced, his commander asked if he wanted to start class later so he could get things settled. He will start military interrogation training in two weeks.

Henderson had just finished 36 weeks of Arabic language training at the Defense Language Institute. Previous to that, he was a cook stationed at Fort Bragg. So far, he plans on making the military his career.

The Hendersons thank you

To All ...

I would personally like to thank all those personnel that helped me and my family recover so quickly from our recent loss. The sheer volume alone is overwhelming; the speed in which everyone reacted is enough to put any light infantry regiment to shame. Although I cannot personally thank each one of you, I am more than certain that your selfless acts of generosity and giving will be multiplied and returned in time especially those who gave more than what they had to spare. Regardless of whom you are or where you are from, you are all my brothers and sisters and I will always remember Fort Huachuca, its people and what it means when the Army, as well as Christians, take care of one another.

Sincerely,

Spec. Loni Duenas-Showers, HHC United States Army Garrison, can be considered a lot of things. Above all else, though, she is one determined soldier.

She seems to take after her mother.

Showers and her mother, Victoria Showers, have both earned the honor of being chosen as Fort Huachuca Soldiers of the Year. Showers received it for 2005. Her mother received the honor in 1990.

"Our whole family is competitive," Showers said as she explained the dynamics and the discipline in her family.

Her childhood was spent in a very disciplined household. Her parents always wanted the best for their kids, so they kept them busy with every opportunity possible. Her father, a prior-service Soldier, and her mother, a retired sergeant first class, kept their kids especially active in karate and dancing. The dancing is something she still enjoys doing.

"I love dancing, any dancing," she explained.

Showers has even taught dancing here in Sierra Vista, both at Alma Dolores International Dance Studio and for Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

Showers, an air-traffic controller for Libby Army Airfield, began her quest for SOY by going to a Soldier of the month board. When she didn't get selected initially, she just kept trying.

"I love to prove people wrong," she said.

Three SOM boards and two Soldier of the Year Quarter boards later, and Showers was in the running for the post SOY.

"It was just more studying and carrying around flash cards. By the time you get to the Soldier of the Year board, you pretty much have all the knowledge you need. It's already in there," she explained.

She credits her success with watching her coworkers. She explains that any time her friends

Buffalo Soldier Trail repairs underway

The southeast bound lanes of Buffalo Soldier Trail are reduced to one lane of traffic between Seventh Street and St. Andrews Drive through March 10. Road repairs will be underway to address pavement rutting and cracking.. Those who regularly travel this section of BST should use an alternate route until construction is complete. Drivers who travel on BST should use caution and obey all traffic control officers and signage.

For more information, contact Angela Dixon Maher at the Sierra Vista Public Works Department at 458-5775.

Volunteer Management Training

The Army Volunteer Coordinator will offer Volunteer Management Information Systems Training at 2 p.m., Feb. 28, and again at 3 p.m., March 1, at the Army Community Service Building 50010. The training is designed for volunteer coordinators who need to learn the new on-line volunteer hours record keeping system.

For more information or to register, call ACS at 533-2330.

Family child care training

Earn an income from home. The Fort Huachuca Family Child Care program is looking for individuals who want to earn an income, raise their children at home and make a difference in another child’s life. The next training begins on March 6. The deadline to sign up is March 3. For more information on how to become an FCC Provider, call 533-2498.

Reminder: Fort Huachuca housing residents may only provide child care in their quarters after gaining approval from the garrison commander and the commander’s agent, the Fort Huachuca Family Child Care office.

Job Match Day seeks sponsors

Army School Liaison Services seeks sponsors who will welcome eighth graders into their workplace for a few hours on May 4 for Job Match Day.

Employer participation affords students the opportunity to match their interests with a career that interest them. Job Match Day has the potential to affect youth for the rest of their lives.

For more information contact Angie Babcock at 533-8346.

Prescribed burn scheduled near Aerostat Site today

A prescribed burn is planned for 150 acres in Area Yankee bordering the south and east sides of the Aerostat Site on Fort Huachuca starting 8 a.m. today, weather conditions permitting. The prescribed burn is being conducted with the U.S.D.A. Forest Service to reduce fuel loads and improve watershed conditions, thereby supporting military training in the area.

From CAR SEATS, Page A3

The Raymond W. Bliss Army Health Center issues car seats, when available, to families who need them. “We expect another shipment of car seats tomorrow,” said Jeanne Warren, secretary, Preventative Medicine. “Seats will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis, following a 30-minute orientation.”

Those who wish to obtain a car seat need to make an appointment, according to Warren. In addition to completing a short survey, families will be shown how to correctly install and use the car seats.

For information about the RWBAHC car seat program, call 533-3536 or 533-5668.

For information on Arizona requirements, visit www.saferoads.org, and for more information about Child Passenger Safety Week and the proper use of booster seats, visit www.boosterseat.gov.

NETCOM/9th ASC PAO

A time-honored military tradition, but isn't it, the Network Enterprise Technology Command said goodbye and welcome to new commissioned officers as the command held a Change of Responsibility and Retreat ceremony Friday at Brown

Parade Field. Ronald J. Desjardins, the outgoing senior enlisted advisor for the actions of the NETCOM/9th ASC during the ceremony, while onlookers watched the post, and the local community said goodbye to the outgoing senior enlisted advisor for the command, Command Sgt. Maj. K. Harbolt took control of the troops during the ceremony. Harbolt was welcomed by her new commander, Command Sgt. Maj. Pollett, commanding general, NETCOM/9th Signal Center. During the Change of Responsibility ceremony, a parade was held in honor of Desjardins, who left this command to take on his new assignment in Washington D.C. Command Sgt. Maj. Information Officer/G-6, the organization that oversees NETCOM/9th ASC's operations. His presence in Washington will require him to look after the well-being of the enlisted corps (active duty and Reserves) for the entire Army signal community, including NETCOM/9th ASC.

Harbolt won't have to go through the usually break in time working for a new boss in a different command because she worked for Pollett before as his senior enlisted advisor while he was commanding general for the 5th Signal Command, in Mannheim, Germany.

As the late-afternoon shadows steadily advanced across the parade field, Pollett summed up both senior enlisted advisors best when he said "Desjardins will always be remembered for his caring for the Soldier," and "Harbolt is the right command sergeant major for the job and the signal community."

Youth Wrestling Club begins season

By Thom Williams

Scout Staff

The Fort Huachuca Scorpions, a youth wrestling club, is preparing to launch a new season of Greco-Roman and Freestyle wrestling.

The club is open to boys and girls from first grade to seniors in high school.

Child and Youth Services is sponsoring the programs. Athletes can register at the Central Registration Office at the Murr Community Center. A current physical verification form and birth certificate are required at the time of registration.

Practices are held on Mondays and Wednesdays at Murr Community Center with plans to add Friday practices later in the season.

Once team membership reaches a certain number, the youth will be broken into two squads. The beginners will practice from 5-6:30 p.m. while the older, more experienced wrestlers will practice from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

"For the kids who have not wrestled before, we are going to start with the basics, single-leg, double-leg, [takedowns] half-nelsons--really the basic stuff," said John Rivera, head coach of the Fort Huachuca Scorpions.

For the older, more experienced wrestlers, Rivera hopes to build their experience and skill so they can compete with wrestlers from clubs in Arizona's metropolitan areas.

The Scorpions are part of USA Wrestling in what Rivera described as a "Little League" for the sport of international-style wrestling throughout the U.S. The club enables athletes to get more mat time once scholastic wrestling wraps up its season.

The head coach is hoping to put the building blocks in place to help build a wrestling dynasty at Buena High School and bring a state wrestling title to the area.

Rivera said he is willing to accept youth onto the team at any point in the season.

Rivera plans to travel to Phoenix and Tucson for 10 USA Wrestling tournaments that are slated for Saturdays from March until the end of May.

The Mar. 11 tournament is scheduled to be the qualifier for the Arizona state team with wrestlers who finish in the top three slots getting a shot at a national title.

Rivera has wrestled since he was five years old and has 16 years of competitive experience.

Cards, gifts impact troop morale

Army & Air Force Exchange Service news release

In light of recent reports concerning troop support, it goes without saying that those who have bravely volunteered to serve in Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom need America's support now more than ever before.

Since troops deployed to Operation Enduring Freedom in the fall of 2001, the American public has spent hundreds of millions of dollars on stickers and magnets with messages of support. In contrast, critical phone support programs that connect deployed troops with their families have received only a fraction of this attention.

"It's great to let your friends and neighbors know you support the troops, but it's important to let those in uniform doing the job on the ground know as well," said Army & Air Force Exchange Service Chief of Communication Lt. Col. Debra Pressley.

Today, any American can make a tangible impact on the morale of deployed troops by sending a Military Exchange Global Prepaid Phone card or a PX/BX gift certificate through one of two Department of Defense-approved AAFES programs, "Gifts from the Homefront" and "Help Our Troops Call Home."

"Both of these efforts are designed to bridge the gap between the front lines and the home front with either the gift of communication or American products," said Lt. Col. Debra Pressley, AAFES chief of communication. "Either method has proven to temporarily transport troops from a war zone to a comfort zone."

The gift certificate program, dubbed "Gifts from the Homefront," allows troops to purchase a wide variety of products at any of more than 50 PX/BX stores in Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom. Reports from Iraq indicate that the "Gifts from the Homefront" are regularly redeemed for snack foods, cool drinks and electronics.

"Help Our Troops Call Home" provides Military Exchange Global Prepaid Phone cards that offer up to three hours of calling from the contingency theater to the United States. In December alone, troops spent more than 16 million minutes calling home at 71 call centers located in and around Operations Iraqi and Enduring Freedom.

"Everyone likes to talk to their family during holidays," said Pressley. "Partnering with the American public to help facilitate that communication is the least we can do."

"Help Our Troops Call Home" Military Exchange Global Prepaid phone cards are available by logging on to www.aafes.org or calling 800-527-2345. "Gifts from the Homefront" gift certificates can also be sent through www.aafes.org or toll free at 877-770-4438. From there, purchasers may send the phone card or PX/BX gift certificate to individual Soldiers, airmen, sailors or Marines (designated by the purchaser) or to "any service member" by choosing to have it distributed through the Air Force Aid Society, American Red Cross, Coalition to Salute America's Heroes, Fisher House, Operation Homefront, Operation Interdependence® or USO.

Let's get ready to rodeo

Scout Reports

The sport of rodeo has been a tradition in the United States since restless civil war veterans first began pushing herds of cattle to railheads and mining camps across this country. Many historians cite the first organized competition as occurring in Arizona at around this time period.

With active imaginations and little to do, frontier cowboys looked for ways to entertain themselves. Like young men of all generations, peers would swagger and goad one another into acts of bravado. This competition honed the skills they practiced every day on the job, but was also a test of their professionalism and a rite of passage for the newly initiated.

The tradition of Arizona rodeo is alive and kicking today.

The Tucson Rodeo will celebrate the 81st meeting by once again hosting the annual La Fiesta De Los Vaqueros on Saturday through February 26. The professional rodeo enlists about 700 contestants from the United States and Canada competing for more than $275,000 in prize money. The Tucson Rodeo is the first major outdoor event on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association schedule and gives visitors an opportunity to see real-life cowboys and cowgirls display their ability in the only sport in the world developed from work skills.

Rodeo today consists of two types of events, rough stock and timed. Contestants' scores depend equally on their performance as well as that of the animals in the rough stock events. These consist of bareback riding, saddle bronc riding and bull riding. The second category of

Sierra Vista 50th Anniversary

*Countdown:
Sierra Vista turns 50 in 14 weeks*

EDITORIAL COMMENT:

The City of Sierra Vista will celebrate its 50th anniversary, "More than a city—a way of life," May 26-28, 2006. In support of the city's celebration, each month until the celebration weekend, The Fort Huachuca Scout will run one reprinted article from the 1955 and 1956 issues of the "Fort Huachuca Scout," showing what fort life was like 50 years ago. Each week, we'll print one or more highlights of what happened on Fort Huachuca a half century ago.

Sierra Vista was founded in 1956 and annexed Fort Huachuca in 1971. Now, as in the past, the two entities worked together and are involved in many partnerships.

The Fort Huachuca Scout has been in publication for 54 years since 1951. Morgue copies of the "Scout" are available for viewing at the Fort Huachuca Public Affairs Office, Building 21115, 3015 Carnahan Street, across the street from the gazebo at the west end of Brown Parade Field. Call 533-2622 for additional information.

World War II Veteran Returns to Army; CAPTURED ON CORREGIDOR BY JAPANESE, FILIPINO COOK ESCAPED TO FIGHT AGAIN

Private First Class Rafael Ramos Sarmiento is a tireless man of many passions. He enjoys a love of life, loyalty to service, benevolence for his fellow man, an unceasing devotion to his motherless sons, and an undying faith in God.

A small man by western standards, the five-foot one-inch Filipino weighs only 117 pounds - even after devouring a substantial Army meal.

But warm and tasty diets weren't always on his menu.

In the Philippines

When the Japanese threatened the Philippines in 1941, patriots armed to fight the oppression. For Rafael, it was the unfortunate opportunity to practice skills learned since his entrance into the Army in 1932.

Life in battle is not the easiest life, and Rafael soon found himself adjusting to situations totally different from anything he had known before. The blank shells of training were replaced by real bullets; the umpires by death. Each living moment was a challenge for life itself. One unlucky break or one careless mistake was his last.

The deck ran cold for Rafael. A baker on Bataan, he managed to find temporary safety as he retreated to Corregidor where he worked in a machine gun nest.

"Soon," he recalls, "we heard the sad words of General Wainwright, 'Put down your arms, destroy all arms, and march to the Japanese where you will be prisoners of war.'"

It was at Capas Tarlac where the big break for escape came.

Finds Cutters

Returning to the disease-ridden 23rd Compound from a 15-man grass cutting detail, he noticed a wire cutter lying near the base of a telephone pole.

He picked up the clippers and flung them in nearby brush.

The Japanese threatened to kill the man who stole the tool. One by one, time and time again, the prisoners stripped and were searched. The tool was never found by the enemy.

Retrieves cutters

That midnight, Rafael crept out and retrieved the wire cutters. He buried them in a hole in the compound and waited for a certain lax guard to walk his post.

It was a long wait.

The night of liberation came on June 24, 1942. Rafael crept up on the sentry and clubbed him to death. He switched clothes, walked to the guard post, and returned to cut a path to freedom through the maze of barbed wire.

"Anybody could escape if they wanted to," he says. "And they all ran out like flies. It is very difficult to live and work a hard day on just a handful of rice."

Whipped Unconscious

"If they disliked you, it was horrible. And they did not like me. Because they thought I was a guerrilla, they hung me by the feet and whipped me until I passed out. "God smiled on me, he said. "And, I somehow lived."

Once he escaped, he hid and met a shipment of arms at Batangas. The trip was a battle all the way.

Switched to Cooking

He then made his way to Bouganville on a Navy Q-boat. He rejoined the Army lines in 1945 and set out to liberate his native islands. He served as a gun crewman with the 45th Anti Aircraft Artillery and later as a light weapons infantryman. After ten months of traveling on his stomach, he became an Army cook.

Rafael saw and felt the devastation of war. Though he hated the stench, anxiety and heartaches of death, he was tapped by its stony hand in 1950 when his wife, Rafaela, died.

Rafael was honorably discharged from the service as a Technician Fourth Class (the World War II equivalent for Specialist Third Class) in May 1947. He returned to his hometown of Idang, Cavite.

Old Urge

He worked for two years as a chef for the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, but found his desire to cook for appreciative soldiers was insatiable.

His deep brown eyes smiled as he took the oath of allegiance at Fort Ord, California March 27, 1955.

He arrived at Fort Huachuca's 14th Signal Company on May 12, 1955 and immediately started on his job of feeding hungry troops.

"His appetite for work is amazing," Capt. Odell E. Fearn, Rafael's Company Commander exclaims. "Pappasan (an oriental term of endearment) is truly a remarkable person and a fine soldier."

"Dragged" to Ranch

His work and his sons, Elipidio, 13, and Eduardo, 10, are his basic interests in life. "He's a hard man to slow down," Capt. Fearn adds. "We almost had to drag him off to a five-day rest period at the Post's dude ranch. He liked it out there but couldn't wait to get back to cook for the men."

Private First Class Rafael Ramos Sarmiento is a small man by western physical standards but his eyes have seen much and his heart and his body have felt much. His is the experience which guides Army men toward the ends of giving true and vital support to national defense.

Hydrosource helps Fort Huachuca vegetation survive

By Joan Vasey

Scout Staff

In a desert environment, water is liquid gold. Fort Huachuca implements many programs to conserve this valuable resource. The most recent is use of Hydrosource in new landscaping projects.

Hydrosource, a cross-linked polyacrylamide, is a long-lasting, water-absorbing soil amendment that looks similar to salt when dry. When hydrated, the granules look like chunks of gelatin about one-half inch in diameter, according to the Web site www.jersey-flea-market.com/hydrosource.htm.

One pound of Hydro-source will absorb 20-48 gallons of water, depending on the water's salt content. Mixed with soil before installation of landscaping plants, its use reduces watering frequency, a conservation measure.

Frank Hammond, forester, Environmental and Natural Resources Division, Directorate of Public Works, plans to use the material in landscapes around new housing built here. Currently, there's a 50-percent mortality rate in trees in Fort Huachuca's developed areas due to combination of arid climate and long-term drought. Additionally, many older trees on the installation are not native to Arizona but are species typical of wetter climates. Hammond hopes the combined use of Hydrosource and drought-tolerant vegetation in future landscaping projects will lead to greater plant survivability and enhanced quality of life for post housing residents.

"Some species of trees need lots of water and transpire hundreds of gallons into the air every day. Without sufficient water, these species typically don't do well in an arid environment under drought conditions," Hammond said.

"By planting native vegetation in Hydrosource-treated soil, plants have a better chance to get established and survive."

Each grain of hydrosource is approximately the size and weight of a grain of sand when dry. Add water, and the grains expand. They can expand as much as 50 times their original size and resemble chunks of gelatin

Twins march through life, Army together

Scout Staff

Ever wonder what it's like to grow up with someone, go to college with them and then go through Basic Training with them? The Walkers understand how that feels.

They're twins.

For Calista and Cassandra Walker of Company F, 309th Military Intelligence Battalion, their whole lives have been about being together.

"We've only spent seven days apart from each other in our entire lives," explained Cassandra for the both of them.

Although Calista gets to speak her fair share, Cassandra is the more talkative and outgoing of the two. She's usually the one who answers all the questions and finishes her identical twin sister's sentences.

The twins' military career almost began right after high school. However, their parents sat them down and expressed the importance of a college degree, which they could always fall back on should their careers not work out.

So off to college they went – together.

The girls attended the University of Pittsburgh at Bradford, and both of them majored in criminal justice. They had separate minors, though. Cassandra minored in computer information systems, while Calista minored in psychology.

It was around the time of their sophomore year in college that Cassandra and Calista began thinking about their careers. They applied for jobs with the Secret Service and with the Pittsburgh City Police Departments. They were accepted in both jobs, but they still had to finish college.

They finally graduated last May and opted to enlist in the Army. They did have the option to get commissioned, but "we wanted to start from the bottom," they said. They enlisted for the 97E interrogator military occupational specialty. With a background in criminal justice, they figured this was the next logical step.

Both girls agreed that basic training was a lot of fun. They were in the same company but in separate platoons, so when they tried to swap places in formation, they got caught before they could even make the swap.

"Walkers, what are y'all doing?" they said their drill sergeant yelled. And they were busted!

After basic training, the twins arrived here and have been "hold-unders" ever since. With the 97E course being full, they have to wait until March to get started. In the meantime, they are busy with military details, being team leaders and squad leaders, and just enjoying life.

Being in leadership positions is something of importance to the Walkers. "We keep people going. We're just silly," they said smiling.

Although the Army keeps the girls on a schedule, the girls do have some things they schedule on their own.

"We call our mom every morning at 5:02 a.m.," they explain. The girls are getting ready for physical training, and their mom is on her way to work. "We just call to check on her."

And the Pittsburgh Steelers? The girls have made it a habit to call home during every game after every good play.

Home is where their family is and where all their old friends still remain. It goes without saying, though, that if someone becomes friends with one of them, they automatically become friends with the other.

"We're a package deal," said Calista.

For their drill sergeant, Staff Sgt. Ronald Levi, having twins in his platoon came as somewhat of a surprise.

"It wasn't until about a week into it that I realized I had twins in my platoon," he said.

As a joke, he has sworn to repay the girls with all the horrible things his older twin sisters did to him growing up.

"I have twin older sisters," he said. "All the things they did to me as a kid, I'm gonna' repay them (the Walkers) with it."

Levi said those things jokingly, because he knows what an asset these twins are. With them in leadership positions and with them motivated 24/7, "it makes the platoon more motivated."

For now, the girls are awaiting their chance to start class. Once that happens, they will be moved to a different platoon, with a different drill sergeant. Then the Army will move them to a duty station. Hopefully, their first station will be the same. They know, though, that they are appreciative of everything Levi and Company F, 309th MI Bn. has helped them with, and that they will remember them.

"You always remember your first set of twins," they said.

General Myer Elementary School construction

Construction of the new General Myer Elementary School is 75 percent finished and is on schedule for completion in late June. Students will leave the 50-year-old elementary school to begin classes in the new school in August. Currently, roofing materials are being installed and, once complete, more interior construction will begin. The $8 million, 57,000-square-foot school will accommodate 450 students.
